Reliable and professional commissioning of your Munters equipment

Grant your Munters desiccant dehumidifier/air treatment systems the best start possible

All Munters desiccant dehumidifiers leave our factory only after an extensive test procedure. A natural continuation is to have Munters' highly qualified service team perform the commissioning on site. With Service Centres in more than 40 countries our world wide service organization is never far away.

Commissioning, more than just a start-up

The commissioning is a vital part of a dehumidifier's life. During the commissioning we will secure the most energy efficient operation by adjusting the most appropriate running conditions and settings for your Munters air treatment equipment.

We will advise you as to the best possible maintenance plan and provide you with:

- Start-up documents including data on settings, enabling you to reset values to default values
- Advice regarding likely requirements for consumable parts

- Recommendation on kits with Consumable/Maintenance/Critical Spares if required
- Warranty validation
- Training of your personnel in correct operation of the dehumidifier, controls etc.

We highly recommend that Munters handles the commissioning of all bigger (3-phase), permanently installed and/or duct connected dehumidifiers.

Also smaller dehumidifiers benefit from a professional commissioning as even minor misadjustments can become costly over time.
